Johan Cederblad is a partner and attorney at Vinge in Stockholm, where he heads the firm's environmental law group. He specializes in environmental law with a particular focus on permitting proceedings for energy facilities – for example offshore and onshore wind power, solar power and other types of energy installations. Johan also has broad experience of permitting proceedings in other areas, such as the food industry and water operations. He also advises on transaction-related environmental law and is consistently ranked among Sweden's leading lawyers by Chambers & Partners and Legal 500, which describes him as "outstanding".
